

Your instructor will provide you with 2 articles on the research topic for the term.

1. In the discussion posts for this week, you will analyze one article in small teams assigned by your instructor; the other you will review individually. Your analysis and review should be guided by the following questions: These questions tie into the article review rubric.
 - a. What is the purpose of this article? What is your evidence for suggesting this is the purpose? If it is not overtly stated, then what do you think the author's purpose was?
 - b. List and discuss 2 -3 articles representing some of the prior research upon which this study was based (hint: see the lit review).
 - c. What are some of the key points or findings this article presents?
 - d. What is the significance of the study? (significance is what the article contributes as a whole to the body of knowledge about this topic)
 - e. Do the authors present recommendations for future research and studies that build on the topics discussed in this article?
 - f. What do the authors do well in this article?
 - g. What problems do you see with the article (problem definition, data collection, literature, conclusions)? Why do you think these are problems?
2. Post your responses to these questions in the discussion area designated by the instructor.